AI SHOULD NOT REPLACE THE WRITERS

AI should definitely not replace the writers because the writing that is written by humans is, moreover, more compelling than the script written by AI. If we were to choose between quality and quantity then I urge you to choose quality. Think of it like this, you have a thousand imposter burgers (they look good but their quality is not that good) but on the other hand you have only one burger but it is perfection, heavenly, with all of your favorite condiments and toppings on it. So would you choose the thousand imposter burgers, or the one perfect burger? Replacing AI with writers would be like replacing a good burger with lots of other imposter ones because as much as AI tries to sound natural, it's writing still doesn't seem humanlike, and human writers are ultimately better creative thinkers even though they don't write as fast as AI.

AI SHOULD NOT BECOME SUPER SMART

I think that if people program AI to become super smart and humanlike, AI is somehow going to outsmart humans and instead of us being in control of it, it's going to be in control of us. That can be dangerous for many different reasons because it was our programming in the first place that made it smart.

WRITERS SHOULD BE PAID FAIRLY

I think that writers should get a fair payload because in the end, it's the writers that come up with the storyline, the writers are the base and foundation of whatever they're producing, the writers are the people who have to think about the emotions and the scenario's and every little thing that makes the production the production! If the producers take away the writers from the writing and replace it with AI all the liveliness of that production goes away.

Also, the writers should get a fair payload because they didn't do anything to be replaced with AI the producers just decided that AI was more time-efficient and the writers only had to edit the script to make it sound more lively which was against their will doing less work so they get paid less.

All in all, only the producers benefit from using AI as a writing form for the script because, they get to save more money from not paying the writers as much and they also save time making productions because of the time AI saves. What the producers don't see however is how scripts made by AI are downgrading from the writing that humans write.
